Audubon Legacy Events Exceed Expectations

The display of giclee prints of John James Audubon's self portrait and unattributed portraits of his business partner, Ferdinand Rozier and his wife Constance, created a great deal of interest and were the subject of two talks; an introduction to the subject by Carolyn Bach on April 22nd, and some in-depth research by local historian James Baker on Saturday.

The partnership contract is on loan from the Museum Learning Center.

The captivating story of their friendship and adventures was the subject of the Guild-sponsored original musical play "Hope is a Shy Bird", written by local playwright Kristen Chibitty.

The musical was a huge hit with the 200-plus audience, and we thank the all-local cast of the Sainte Genevieve Theatre Guild - a superb performance!

More than a dozen early birds enjoyed the expert-led Bird Hike Saturday, and 96 people cast votes for 22 birdhouse creations at the Art Center. Best of Show went to Gary Bodefeld's three-story tree house; Functional Category: 1st - Sandra Muzzy, 2nd to Michelle Spencer, 3rd Jackie Brizzard. Decorative Category: 1st Virginia White, 2nd Juanita & Dave, 3rd to Don Kirchner.

The Guild member's "Inspired by Nature" exhibit and Audubon's history exhibit will be at the Art Center through June 12th. Don't miss it!

Members Support Guild Garden with Art

Activity meetings have become very popular with members. At the May meeting, Peggy Bay led the group in a project targeted at the following weekend's Garden Walk. The 40 whimsical garden tags created, plus garden rocks provided by Gina Bennett raised $86 towards new plants to freshen the garden beds out front.

Members Making Art Happen

In Exhibits:

Vada Galvan will have a solo show at the Farmington Library in June. Colleen Williams had one there in April.

A Two Gallery Visual Arts Coop exhibit at the Cape Arts Council in May has art by Jean Rissover, Juanita Wyman, Sara Cochrane, Vada Galvan and Linda Buis. Linda's art is featured in the window exhibit from June 3rd to 25th.

In Workshops:

Peggy Bay, Angie Dalton, Iris Vincent, Juanita Wyman, Karyn Stuhlman and Ellen Hahs have made the Summer Workshops schedule possible by offering to share their knowledge and skills with children, teens and adults. See the back page schedule.

Dianne Dickerson continues to provide art instruction at the Ste. Genevieve Nutrition Center.

The 14 seniors who joined Dianne Dickerson's acrylic painting workshop, encouraged by refreshments provided by the Nutrition Center director.

Members Take Local "Field Trips"

Field Trip Chair Iris Vincent organized two groups (we couldn't all fit in one) to take afternoon tea at the nearby QRST (Quintessential Rivertown Spice & Tea) Shop. Many dressed for the occasion.

This outing was so popular, Iris made arrangements with the owners of the Common Grounds Coffee Shop across the street to stay open late so May meeting goers could try the menu. Common Grounds is a non-profit providing job training to special needs individuals.

Members Visit Museums in Paducah

Quilters Betty Joggerst, Iris and Connie discuss a fiber piece at the Yeiser Art Museum's exhibit.

As a prelude to the Guild's first Quilt Show, and to encourage member entries in August's fiber art exhibit, Iris, with help from Connie Klein and Carolyn Bach, arranged for a dozen members to overnight in Paducah, allowing sufficient time for galleries, two museum exhibits, and the world's largest supplier of quilt fabrics. A very enjoyable/inspirational trip.
